From a logistics platform in Djibouti to children in a health facility in Yemen, from a nutrition manufacturing facility in Madagascar to health centres in Nigeria and from the world's largest humanitarian warehouse in Denmark to a refugee camp in Bangladesh, UNICEF supplies made their way across the globe to reach children in need in 2017.

Supplies included health and hygiene products, water pumps, nutrition products, toys, school equipment and more. These helped children and youth to survive, thrive and become engaged citizens in their societies.

In 2017, UNICEF procured a total of $3.46 billion in goods and services. Of these, $553.3 million went to emergencies – representing the largest year on record for humanitarian responses in terms of supply.

Concurrent emergencies presented challenges to which UNICEF adapted and responded with agility. Life-saving vaccines were delivered to Yemen following a 21-day airspace blockade that prevented humanitarian aid shipments. Logistic services were rapidly installed to support an escalating number of Rohingya refugees in Cox's Bazar, Bangladesh. Water, sanitation and health supplies were delivered to simultaneous cholera outbreaks around the world.

In the Horn of Africa, where droughts exacerbated a large-scale nutrition crisis, Ready-to-Use Therapeutic Food saved hundreds of thousands of children affected by malnutrition. By strengthening local manufacturing capacity, nearly half of the supply was sourced from programme countries in the region. This achievement led to efficiencies in transportation, the reduction of carbon emissions and the support of local markets.

This year also saw a major accomplishment in securing affordable pricing for a full schedule of vaccines for children under the age of one. The price for this "basket" of seven vaccines is now under $18 for low income countries – down from the 2013 price of $24.46.

Securing affordable prices for other commodities further yielded savings that totalled $2.051 billion over the past six years. This exceeded the target we set in 2012 by 153 per cent. The funds that are saved, in turn, can be used to buy more essential commodities, as we have seen in Kazakhstan. UNICEF's support in negotiating prices for antiretroviral drugs on behalf of the government contributed to savings that enabled the government to purchase more drugs and dramatically increase coverage for HIV patients.

None of our achievements are possible without collaboration and partnerships. Convening governments, industry and other partners to share knowledge and solutions, as well as engaging end-users, are foundational approaches in our work. This is critical as UNICEF seeks to encourage innovative solutions to meet the needs that are not adequately addressed. This includes products for children transitioning into adolescence – a time that brings a set of unique needs.

By 2030 – the year by which we aim to achieve the Sustainable Development Goals, children born today will be adolescents, in their second decade of life. As we work to ensure that they have the supplies to support their health and well-being, no matter where they reside, we are building a strong foundation for the leaders of tomorrow.

Global Supply Strategies – together, accelerating results for children

Following the journey of RUTF: how will UNICEF's Supply Function deliver agile, sustainable solutions for children?

In 2017, UNICEF launched a new set of supply strategies to address the needs of children amid changing contexts and rising challenges, like climate change, urbanization and modern conflicts. As the strategies launched, nutrition crises distressed countries throughout Africa and the Middle East, and life-saving supplies like Ready-to-Use Therapeutic Food (RUTF) were often the first line of response. Here is how the Global Supply Strategies drive the product to ensure survival for children and allow them to thrive.

To support humanitarian responses, in addition to sustainable programme delivery along the supply chain, UNICEF works with partners locally, regionally and globally. Synergies help improve preparedness and resilience beyond the immediate emergency intervention. This is part of the Humanitarian Development Continuum strategy, which envisions a world in which children's lives are not disrupted by crises. An example of preparedness would be the pre-positioning of RUTF in a country prone to nutrition crises, to better manage the sudden onset of a crisis with the least disruption to existing nutrition programmes.

The Supply Chain kicks in

UNICEF works with governments and partners to define the needs of children and identify supplies and programmes to meet those needs. Forecasting demand helps to secure supplies and deliver the right products at the right price and quality.

As part of the Products & Markets strategy, UNICEF works with the nutrition industry to optimize products like RUTF as a quality, cost-effective solution for children affected by severe acute malnutrition. Engagement with industry aims at the long-term competitiveness and sustainability of the market. This means addressing current and future needs, focusing on the availability, affordability, quality and appropriateness of RUTF in global and local markets. Suppliers in local markets are incentivized to provide accessible solutions, contributing to healthy competition and innovation. (Related story on p15.)

Timely delivery of affordable products requires good budgeting and planning, in addition to the strategic use of financing tools. The Financing and Domestic Resource Mobilization strategy supports governments to ensure in-country supply availability while reducing supply disruptions or stock-outs. For suppliers in programme countries, facilitating access to working capital or growth financing allows manufacturers to increase their capacity and performance, so that UNICEF can source more locally. This helps to make sure that the cost of RUTF is not a barrier for some developing countries.

The strategy around the Science of Delivery ensures that services and goods are provided to children through the most efficient, sustainable, and resilient delivery modality. It supports the selection of implementing partners through informed choices considering cost, speed, quality and governance, among other factors. When it is more efficient and brings more value, RUTF is sourced and procured closer to the children in need, rather than being shipped between continents, and is delivered through NGOs and private sector partners with distribution networks close to beneficiaries.

Sustainable solutions also rely on Services. To complete the RUTF carton's journey to the child, and to execute programmes, UNICEF uses strategic service contracting that allows outside expertise to enhance the supply chain and achieve efficient programme delivery.

Consistent Monitoring throughout the supply chain ensures that RUTF is available in the right quantity at the right time and delivered where children are treated. Early detection of gaps in the supply chain enables governments and partners to take corrective action and mobilize for timely access to supplies. Continued monitoring of the child's condition helps plan follow-up care and the next delivery of supplies.

The ultimate goal is sustainably owned and managed supply chains at the national level. Through the National Supply Chain System Strengthening strategy, clearly defined needs, set standards, a sufficient pool of suppliers of goods and services and strong supply chain capacity ensure that children can rely on their government's protection and care. This means that when a nutrition crisis hits, a national ecosystem of private, public and non-governmental partners kicks into action to meet the needs. (Related story on page 20.)

UNICEF strengthens itself as a partner

Caring individuals and a skilled, agile Supply Community act as links along the global supply chain. UNICEF staff work with others to ensure that the needs of children are met beyond the immediate challenges of a specific supply response. Knowledge-sharing, modernization and continuous improvement are part of Optimizing UNICEF Supply. Technology and real-time data support timely delivery and efficient resource utilization that avoids waste.

Within UNICEF, ethical management and transparent governance around the Supply Function are part of Strengthening Organizational Excellence to ensure that resources are targeted to the right purpose, and critical supplies can seed long-lasting positive impact on the lives of children and their communities.

Empowering youth through supplies

The work of UNICEF and its partners helps children to thrive in some of the most challenging situations around the world. This work supports children from early childhood and continues as they transition into their second decade of life.

Given the needs of the fast-growing population of adolescents globally, it is becoming more critical to do more for children in their second decade of life. Over 1.2 billion people are currently aged 10-19, and 60 per cent of them live in low- and lower-middle income countries, often with limited resources and opportunities. Millions of adolescents need protection from threats such as conflict, trafficking, abuse, child marriage and violence at school. More than 200 million are out of school at the secondary education level, where their peers are acquiring skills that are needed in a rapidly changing employment landscape. Girls are more likely to be left behind, as 34 per cent of female youth are neither in education, employment nor training, compared to 10 per cent of male youth globally.

Programmes that target the needs of adolescents are a smart investment in the sustained well-being of our children and our future citizens. Secondary education, non-formal education and training, girls and empowerment, and young people on the move and in conflict situations are the four target areas where UNICEF aims to serve youth. As of 2017, how did UNICEF provide uninterrupted access to products and services as children journeyed into adolescence? Here are some highlights of current targeted supply approaches for adolescents, as well as the future pipeline, while regular programmes continue to serve age groups inclusive of youth transitioning from childhood.

WHAT IS THE ADOLESCENT KIT?

The Adolescent Kit for Expression and Innovation is a package of tools and supplies to engage adolescents aged 10-17 affected by conflict and other crises. It was dispatched for the first time in 2017 to Bangladesh, Iraq, Nigeria, South Sudan and Sri Lanka. The kit, which is designed for 50 adolescents and four facilitators, includes Emotion Cubes that facilitate expression of feelings, especially for physically and visually challenged adolescents. Braille is being explored on a future design as kits continue to be monitored and evaluated to better address the needs of young people.

Emotion cubes, and activity and inspiration cards in the Kit help engage adolescents in a range of activities

IN THE PIPELINE

In 2018, an improved Water, Sanitation and Hygiene (WASH) & Dignity Kit will contain a wider variety of Menstrual Hygiene Management (MHM) products, including for adolescent girls. The products (disposable sanitary pads, reusable menstrual pads with female underwear and multipurpose cloth) will allow more flexibility of choice to girls and women. UNICEF is also scaling up oral Pre-Exposure Prophylaxis (PrEP) to prevent HIV infection among sexually active adolescents, along with the scale-up of Point-of-Care HIV testing. Our vision is for UNICEF supplies to serve the specific health and educational needs of young people while understanding their changing contexts.

Engaging industry for accessible, quality products

Engaging with governments, industry and end-users is critical to identifying needs, driving research and development, and supporting scale-up. For every child to access essential products, and for suppliers to access markets, UNICEF works with manufacturers and partners to:

- incentivize industry to develop product solutions that meet the needs of children
- achieve prices that allow equitable access to governments and partners
- drive healthy competition through fairness and transparency in markets
- ensure the availability of quality products to those in need

A health worker fills a syringe with a dose of tetanus vaccine in the village of Buaw in Koch County, South Sudan

In 2017, UNICEF hosted seven global consultations and forums in market sectors that serve children, including vaccines, safe injection equipment, nutrition and education kits. Dialogues with companies and industry associations help UNICEF share the needs of children and families worldwide, understand market trends and drive research and development.

Improving nutrition products and efficiency in the supply chain

In nutrition markets, where norms and regulations vary globally, the biennial inter-agency meeting on nutrition hosted by UNICEF in 2017 focused on improving the harmonization of food product specifications, safety and quality between UN agencies and NGOs like Médecins Sans Frontières (MSF) that lead nutrition interventions.

UNICEF also engaged with manufacturers at a nutrition supplier meeting hosted at its Supply headquarters, exchanging information on supply chains for specialized nutrition products. This contributed to a better understanding of manufacturers' challenges, and to UNICEF's work to improve nutrition interventions that work for both the supply side and the demand side, to the benefit of children. At the same time, information from UNICEF and other buyers contributed to suppliers' ability to make better-informed decisions on production and investment, and to operate more efficiently. These efficiencies can contribute to more affordable prices and improved availability, and to further investment in developing innovative products.

Sustainable markets for vaccine buyers and suppliers

As one of the largest buyers of vaccines globally, for many years UNICEF has used consultations with industry, partners and governments to lead procurement approaches that ensure supply is sustainable and efficient in meeting demand. This has helped to avoid vaccine shortages or over-supply through planning and sharing market information, as well as driving healthy competition among suppliers – making vaccines more affordable for lower-income countries.

This year, UNICEF Supply Division led a Vaccine Industry Consultation (VIC) with a one-day overlap with its largest Vaccine Procurement Practitioners Exchange Forum (VPPEF) to date, where government procurement agencies from 22 countries converged to share best practices in immunization programme management. Participants discussed the challenges of accessing affordable and quality-assured vaccines in light of funding problems and other barriers. The overlapping events allowed government agencies at the VPPEF to interact with vaccine manufacturers attending the VICs, and participants highly appreciated the opportunity to build better understanding between manufacturers and buyers.

UNICEF is building upon these experiences to engage with suppliers and partners in other market sectors, such as education, water and sanitation.

Product innovation Driving scale-up for access

To reach every child with products that are fit-for-purpose, UNICEF drove product innovation projects across programme and emergency areas, including education, sanitation and medical technologies. Among others, here are three highlights from the year, at varying stages to scale.

Reaching children with improved learning environments

UNICEF is involved in furnishing schools for communities in need, particularly in Africa and Asia. To improve the quality of learning environments, as well as to facilitate the procurement of locally produced furniture from local materials, design specifications and procurement guidelines were developed – as part of a project streamlining school furniture procurement to reach more children. In late 2017, a field trial in Rwanda was initiated to validate whether local manufacturers could produce furniture of sufficient quality, and to evaluate the furniture's contribution to improving school environments for children.

Incentivizing R&D for Zika diagnostics

In 2016, a $10 million advance purchase commitment (AMC) with support from USAID was designed to incentivize manufacturers to develop a solution that was not available on the market for diagnosing Zika at the point of care (POC). In 2017, UNICEF launched its first Request for Proposal (RFP) for a POC diagnostic tool for the Zika virus. As a result, two Long-Term-Arrangements (LTAs) were signed for procurement of qualified products

Improved furniture design can contribute to better learning environments. A girl during a post-installation evaluation of new school furniture in Malawi through 2019. Based on specifications for usability in low-resource clinical settings, the tool will provide accessible diagnostics to help initiate appropriate care for patients.

Recognizing a gap in access to life-saving oxygen therapy

An estimated 120,000 children die every year due to a lack of oxygen therapy. In 2017, the World Health Organization (WHO) included oxygen in its Model List of Essential Medicines, recognizing that oxygen therapy systems can help avoid fatalities from common respiratory conditions like pneumonia. Thanks to a grant from the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation, UNICEF is working with WHO to increase access to life-saving oxygen therapy in low-resource contexts – where solutions are not reaching severely ill children because of procurement, distribution and equipment utilization challenges.

To bring oxygen therapy to scale, UNICEF is working on better understanding local country contexts and user profiles for health facilities. This will lay the foundation for the effective adoption of appropriate oxygen products at the country level, based on updated specifications, procurement guidelines and a decision-assisting tool for planning and budgeting, and the eventual availability of products on LTAs.

Targeting sanitation needs of underserved users

Accessible latrine slabs protect the dignity of small children, the elderly, and persons with disabilities. UNICEF issued an RFP for such slabs in 2017, communicating broad product requirements to potential suppliers. Five proposals and four samples were received, of which two qualified for field trials planned for 2018. Feedback from end-users is critical in developing prototype designs with manufacturers, to ensure that defined disability needs are addressed and products are ready for scale-up.

In Focus Increasing access to ARV drugs in Kazakhstan

Bridging supply gaps through UNICEF procurement services

The HIV epidemic is rapidly gaining strength in eastern Europe and central Asia, with a 57 per cent increase in annual new HIV infections between 2010 and 2015. Approximately 1.5 million people are living with HIV in the region, of whom only 19 per cent have achieved the viral suppression necessary to prevent transmission. While antiretroviral (ARV) drugs are available, the gap between demand and supply is wide.

Middle-income countries such as Kazakhstan often face hurdles in stretching finite domestic budgets for the procurement of lifesaving supplies such as ARVs. Due to their income status, middle-income countries can end up paying high prices for pharmaceutical products, especially those that are patent-protected. The necessity for expanding government fiscal space has become increasingly urgent where the risk of supply disruption escalates with the exit of traditional development assistance.

In 2017, Kazakhstan achieved a dramatic increase in ARV coverage for HIV-affected adults and adolescents. This meant more patients could be registered to receive drugs. The increase in coverage (from 6,000 to 13,000 patients) was partly a consequence of two years of work with UNICEF to secure more affordable prices from suppliers specifically for Kazakhstan. Based on an international trade agreement that grants flexibilities to developing countries to allow access to drugs protected by intellectual property rights, UNICEF advocated for accessible prices.

In 2016, the patent-holding supplier for Kazakhstan agreed on a waiver for UNICEF to buy generic ARV drugs on behalf of the country. In 2017, this contributed to almost $13 million in savings compared to the previously approved price ceiling. These savings allowed the government to procure more supplies, and ARV coverage increased from 50 per cent to 90 per cent.

UNICEF provides procurement services support with the aim of improving sustainable access to essential supplies such as ARV drugs

Sustainable access through scale and transparency

The work to improve access extends beyond a transactional supply relationship. Health ministries have recognized the need to strengthen national healthcare systems, particularly around HIV-related services, and UNICEF can be a vital partner in this context. The Government of Kazakhstan participated in public exchange forums and workshops hosted by UNICEF in recent years, and voiced challenges not only in access to high-quality, affordable pharmaceuticals, but also in supply chain management. These events provided the opportunity to share experiences and learn from other countries in the region where fragmented procurement systems are being strengthened through scale and transparency with UNICEF support, with the objective of transitioning to government self-procurement. Consequently, Kazakhstan engaged UNICEF procurement services in 2016 for the purchase of ARVs.

Government agencies and suppliers rely on the credible and transparent status of UNICEF, as well as its technical capacity and market knowledge, to balance demand and supply in markets that provide life-saving supplies. UNICEF procurement services can enable governments to scale up access to essential products in a cost-effective manner, particularly when there are challenges in achieving economies of scale or building procurement capacity. Whether this is through price negotiations with suppliers, special procurement arrangements or equipping governments with knowledge on forecasting and planning for timely procurement, the solutions vary by context.

Ultimately, the focus is on sustainability and government ownership as the means to achieve its goals. In Kazakhstan's case, UNICEF procurement services helped improve equitable access to critical ARV supplies during a public health challenge. The coming years may see an opportunity to further increase government fiscal space, address anticipated supply financing challenges and optimize national healthcare delivery.

Optimizing supply chains in Afghanistan

Data is used as evidence to inform buying decisions as UNICEF works with governments to strengthen national supply chains for health and nutrition programmes

Decades of conflict and insecurity have created a semi-permanent state of emergency in Afghanistan. This can create an environment in which governments and partners worldwide have historically focused on managing the immediate situation at hand: securing funds to procure emergency supplies, setting up temporary arrangements to store and distribute products, and then moving on to the next emergency. If there is stock today, then the situation is under control. But what happens tomorrow?

UNICEF has been working with Afghanistan's Ministry of Public Health and partners on Health Systems Strengthening (HSS), an approach that enables countries to transition from an emergency context to a longer-term development context for improving health outcomes. Part of the approach focuses on building stronger, more resilient national procurement and supply chain management through better data collection and analysis. Data is used as evidence to inform decision-making, so that managers can proactively monitor vaccines and nutrition goods within supply chains.

VIVA FOR VACCINE SUPPLY MANAGEMENT

Afghanistan was the first country to adopt the Visibility for Vaccines (ViVa) online tool at the regional government level in late 2017, following its successful application at the national level. ViVa uses data from country stock inputs and UNICEF to track vaccine supply and forecast demand by monitoring potential stockouts or overstocking. The Government of Afghanistan trained supply managers to enable stock monitoring and decision-making at lower levels, contributing to data-based improvements in vaccine supply management closer to the communities being served.

Common challenges in supply chain management include supply leakage and waste, poor forecasting and stock-outs, leading to inefficient use of government budgets. UNICEF has been working with Afghanistan's Public Nutrition Department (PND) on initiatives to address such challenges.

Following the introduction of a tool that enabled the PND to more accurately quantify needs, the Department estimated that data-driven supply chain management contributed to $4.8 million in savings in 2017 by avoiding oversupply of Ready-to-Use Therapeutic Food (RUTF). It was found that during 2015 and 2016, an estimated 30 to 40 per cent of the RUTF procured was not fully traceable to end-users. To identify sources of poor reporting, leakage and wastage, the PND recognized the need for strong end-user monitoring practices and a rigorous forecasting process to identify needs. An end-user tool was implemented in 16 provinces to verify that RUTF is reaching children. The tool includes new standard operating procedures, developed jointly by the Government and UNICEF.

For the longer term, RUTF is being added to the list of commodities that are procured as part of regular community health services, ensuring that the supply is not reliant on emergency appeals for funding. RUTF will be procured through a national programme starting in 2018. This will be a key component in strengthening Afghanistan's health systems and helping to build more resilient supply chains – equipping the country to not only tackle today's emergencies, but also manage tomorrow's routine health matters.

UNICEF continues to work with national governments and partners to help countries identify opportunities to strengthen supply chain systems as part of HSS, with the aim of ensuring sustainable access to products and services for children.

Environmentally sustainable supply

Our impact on the environment will have consequences for the children we serve and the planet they will inherit. UNICEF is improving the efficiency of transport for global supply operations, lowering carbon emissions and reducing harmful waste from supplies

More sustainable supply can be achieved in collaboration with suppliers and service providers. Since July 2017, new Long-Term-Arrangements (LTAs) with freight forwarders include clauses for reporting on CO2 emissions, and company policies and certifications related to environmental and sustainability issues. Consideration of the environment and sustainable supply are becoming standard practice. Here are some highlights from the year.

Reducing waste from Safe Injection Equipment

UNICEF procures safe injection equipment (SIE) for immunization programmes on behalf of 80 countries annually, amounting to approximately 50,000 cubic metres of equipment to be transported. In 2017, a new solicitation exercise for SIE also evaluated suppliers' bids based on environmental considerations. Seven suppliers were awarded LTAs based on reducing waste and transport volumes, among other criteria.

Additionally, by bundling products from the same suppliers, the number of shipments was reduced by 11 per cent in the 2013-2017 period while the quantities increased by 12 per cent. All told, UNICEF's new way of procuring SIE is expected to achieve an estimated 12 per cent reduction of contaminated waste from injection devices and a 6 per cent reduction in transport volumes compared to previous years.

Bio-compostable bags in health and education kits

As part of our ongoing efforts to 'green' procurement, plastic bags in UNICEF supplies are being replaced with a bio-compostable option, reducing harmful waste. These bags become part of the soil or the water when discarded, without leaving plastic microparticles. While the product cost may be higher for bio-compostable bags, the overall cost of environmental damage led to the decision to use the bio-compostable option.

In 2017, approximately 20 million bio-compostable bags were included in health or education kits sent to Burundi, the Democratic Republic of the Congo (DRC), Nigeria and Sierra Leone. In DRC, patients in health clinics are carrying medicines home in bags made of corn husk that are 100 per cent bio-compostable. In Burundi, children received their school materials in bio-compostable bags as part of a Back to School campaign in 2017.

UNICEF on the frontlines

2017 saw a wide variety of humanitarian crises to which UNICEF responded. Spanning 61 countries, the emergency supply response amounted to a global procurement spend of $553.3 million

LARGEST EMERGENCY SUPPLY CATEGORIES BY PROCUREMENT VALUE ($ MILLIONS)

Life-saving medical, nutrition, shelter, and water and sanitation supplies served children and families in urgent need of assistance amid complex crises. Violent conflict and droughts continued to threaten lives and displace millions across borders in Africa and the Middle East. In addition to ongoing protracted emergencies, new challenges from the Rohingya refugee crisis in south Asia and a series of destructive hurricanes in the Caribbean tested UNICEF's preparedness and its ability to respond.

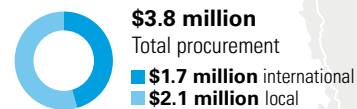

UNICEF mounted an extensive nutrition emergency response globally, as malnutrition threatened survival for millions in Bangladesh, Ethiopia, Kenya, the Lake Chad region, Nigeria, the Sahel region, Somalia, South Sudan and Yemen. The crises were linked to environmental events like droughts, as well as political events that posed geographical and resource barriers due to conflict. These factors exacerbated the crises and aggravated conditions for the most vulnerable, especially children and women.

THIS MAP PROVIDES AN OVERVIEW OF THE HIGHEST-LEVEL EMERGENCIES THAT CALLED FOR UNICEF-WIDE MOBILIZATION

CARIBBEAN REGION

In September, Hurricanes Irma, Jose and Maria battered Caribbean islands including Anguilla, Antigua & Barbuda, Barbados, British Virgin Islands, Cuba, Dominica, Haiti, Turks and Caicos, and the US Virgin Islands. The scattered geography of the islands presented logistical challenges for efficient coordination of supply shipments, customs clearance, temporary warehousing and distribution to those in need. More than 1.4 million people needed emergency assistance, and over a quarter of them were children. UNICEF responded with water & sanitation, education and shelter supplies.

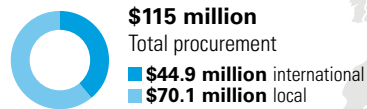

NIGERIA & THE LAKE CHAD BASIN

Ongoing conflict in the Lake Chad basin affected more than 17 million people in Cameroon, Chad, the Niger and Nigeria, exacerbating the situation of displaced children and families. In northern Nigeria, where violence and conflict-related displacement also continued, an estimated 400,000 children were suffering from severe acute malnutrition. UNICEF responded with vaccines, nutrition supplies and medical kits.

SYRIA & SURROUNDING REGION

Seven years of conflict in the Syrian Arab Republic have driven more than 5 million people, half of whom are children, into neighbouring countries Egypt, Iraq, Jordan, Lebanon and Turkey. An additional 6 million people are internally displaced. UNICEF continued to send vaccines, education supplies, and clothing and footwear, among other supplies.

CENTRAL AFRICAN REPUBLIC

Since 2012, the humanitarian crisis in the Central African Republic has continued to displace children and their families amid violence and instability. Nearly one in four Central Africans is displaced, with 600,000 displaced internally and 538,000 living as refugees in neighbouring countries. In this protracted crisis, some of the most important supplies sent by UNICEF in 2017 included vaccines, shelter and field equipment and nutrition supplies.

THE DEMOCRATIC REPUBLIC OF THE CONGO

A surge of violent conflict in 2017 displaced more than 1.7 million people from their homes, disrupting access to basic sanitation, health and education. A cholera outbreak further complicated the crisis and over 2 million children suffered from severe acute malnutrition. UNICEF responded with water & sanitation, nutrition and transport supplies.

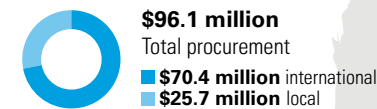

IRAQ

Armed violence in Iraq contributed to ongoing demand for humanitarian assistance, including access to safe water and sanitation facilities, and protection and schooling for displaced children, as well as psychosocial support and vaccinations for those returning to formerly besieged areas. Nearly 335,000 internally displaced school-aged children were out of school. UNICEF responded with water & sanitation, clothing and education supplies.

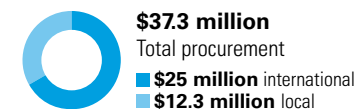

ETHIOPIA, KENYA, SOMALIA

Droughts in the Horn of Africa, in addition to conflict in Somalia, left 9.7 million people in need of humanitarian assistance. This heightened the risk of disease outbreaks, and some 700,000 children were severely malnourished. An increasingly local approach to sourcing nutrition supplies improved UNICEF's efficient and sustainable response in the region. (See full story on page 30.)

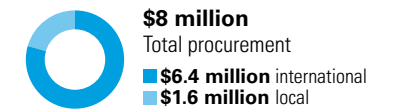

SOUTH SUDAN

Four years into the conflict, more than 4 million children were affected by famine, disease, forced recruitment by armed groups and lack of access to schooling. Vaccines were the biggest supply component to protect children from disease, in addition to nutrition and water & sanitation supplies.

BANGLADESH

The large-scale displacement of Undocumented Myanmar Nationals fleeing violence in Myanmar left 720,000 children in need of humanitarian assistance. As the Rohingya refugee crisis escalated in August, UNICEF responded with essential commodities arriving by air charter, alongside other UN agencies and partners setting up camps in Cox's Bazar, Bangladesh. Vaccines, water & sanitation, nutrition and education supplies comprised the bulk of UNICEF's supply response.

YEMEN

Three years into the protracted conflict and humanitarian crisis, nearly the entire population of Yemen – 22 million people – was affected by famine and a crumbling health system. More than 11 million children required urgent assistance. In response to large-scale outbreaks of cholera, UNICEF sent WASH supplies including water purification tablets to improve access to safe water. (See full story on page 32.)

Combating malnutrition through sustainable supply chains

An increasingly local approach to sourcing and delivering Ready-to-Use Therapeutic Food facilitated access to children in need amid nutrition crises. By avoiding international air charters, UNICEF improved the economic, environmental and social sustainability of its supply chains

Ready-to-Use Therapeutic Food (RUTF) is a life-saving product that was a critical part of UNICEF's nutrition response worldwide in 2017. Through years of work implementing a strategy to develop local RUTF markets, UNICEF's supplier base grew from a single supplier in 2000-2006 to nearly 20 manufacturers in 2017, 17 of which are located in programme countries where UNICEF is active. This expansion led to 55 per cent of UNICEF-procured RUTF in 2017 being manufactured by suppliers in programme countries, closer to the demand. The aim was to facilitate access to supply in countries using RUTF while meeting increasing demand for locally produced nutrition products. This has improved overall supply chain efficiency, through reduced delivery lead times, costs and carbon emissions from transport, while supporting local economies.

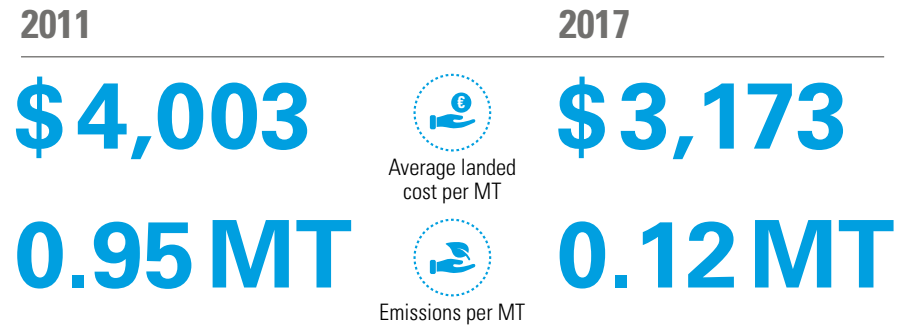

GLOBAL RUTF PROCUREMENT (2006–2017)

UNICEF is increasingly sourcing supplies locally in programme countries

EMERGENCY PROCUREMENT OF RUTF – DRY SEASON IN THE HORN OF AFRICA

Sourcing RUTF from suppliers in the region contributed to economically and environmentally sustainable outcomes.

In the Horn of Africa, for example, where UNICEF delivered 23 per cent of its global RUTF supply, an efficient regional supply chain strengthened local preparedness and access in Ethiopia, Kenya and Somalia.

Comparing the region's peak demand periods during the dry seasons in 2011 and 2017, when the procurement volume was similar, the sustainability improved markedly.

In 2011, the entire regional supply response required international freight, as there were no pre-qualified RUTF suppliers nearby. By contrast, in 2017, 48 per cent of the regional supply in the Horn of Africa was sourced from programme countries.

UNICEF could respond with regional and local capacity despite the scale of the crisis. Avoiding international air charters contributed to a 78 per cent reduction in transport cost per metric tonne of RUTF, as supply lines relied more on sea and road freight. This also resulted in an 89 per cent reduction in total carbon emissions.

Local sourcing also strengthened local markets. Between two suppliers in Ethiopia and Kenya, RUTF production capacity increased by 125 per cent compared to 2011, and the number of employees increased from 276 to 487 in six years. The social and economic impact of relying on local production opens opportunities to consider a wider vision for sustainability in emergency responses. Ongoing work to grow local capacity while responding to humanitarian crises further strengthens long-term development for communities.

Beyond the need to deliver life-saving supplies, the response in the Horn of Africa shows the additional responsibility and impact UNICEF and partners can have on communities and the environment along the supply chain, even during emergencies.

In Focus

Yemen: access in a protracted emergency

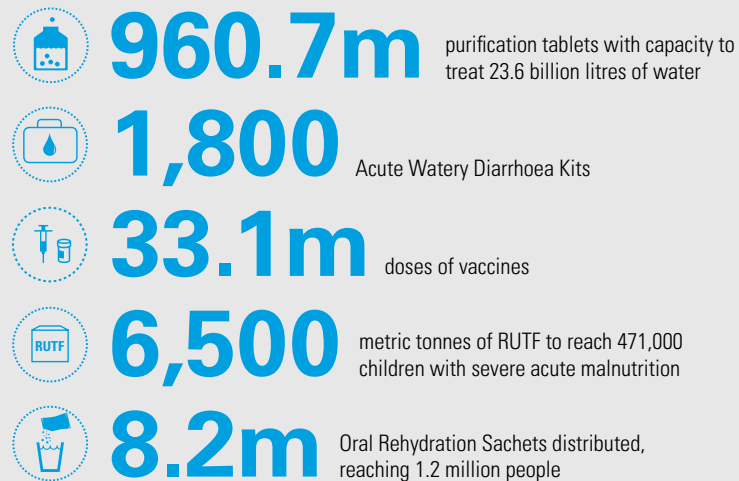

As the conflict in Yemen entered its third year, the violence continued to take the lives of many children and disrupt the lives of others. Blockades of ports prevented commercial and humanitarian supplies from reaching families, and a lack of basic services further threatened lives where disease and death could have been avoided.

In 2017, there were 2,237 deaths associated with cholera, and 38 deaths associated with diphtheria. 385,000 severe acute malnutrition cases were reported out of 2.4 million children screened.

In a complex humanitarian emergency where each month seemed to add new strains on all sides, UNICEF continued to respond to cholera and diphtheria outbreaks and the threat of famine, among other needs.

A challenged health system and disruption of other services, in addition to price inflation, acted as further barriers to survival and schooling for children. The UNICEF procurement spend in Yemen was the largest among all humanitarian crises in 2017, and the organization will continue to implement a large supply plan in 2018. The unrelenting scale of the needs underscores the importance of preparedness and durable solutions.

KEY SUPPLIES FOR YEMEN 2017

OVERCOMING BARRIERS TO REACH THOSE IN NEED

UNICEF continued using a logistics platform in Djibouti for strategic access to Yemen as the conflict compromised supply routes, and local boats helped to shuttle supplies across the water to Yemen. Resource mobilization, pre-positioning and timely collaboration with partners helped to overcome barriers to reach those in need.

Amid the cholera outbreak, access to safe water was critical to counter its rapid spread. The need for water purification tablets and jerry cans escalated, and the high demand meant that UNICEF's suppliers devoted over half of their production capacity to Yemen alone. The 960.7 million water purification tablets procured for Yemen in 2017 provided the capacity to treat 23.6 billion litres of water. 1,817 Acute Watery Diarrhoea kits, a new kit specifically targeting cholera launched in 2017, were packed and shipped from the UNICEF Supply Warehouse in Copenhagen and delivered in staggered shipments through Djibouti. These were critical supply interventions to address gaps in access to health services, water and sanitation, and to prevent the spread of disease.

UNICEF also delivered medical and nutrition supplies for children affected by malnutrition. Robust programmes with pre-positioning allowed an efficient response from regional locations, reducing freight and environmental costs. As the supply chain in Yemen became more precarious, UNICEF gradually built up buffer stocks for life-saving commodities.

Over 30 million doses of vaccines were flown in during intermittent lifts on blockades, as UNICEF offices in the region supported time- and temperature-sensitive stock management and planning. This allowed for agile delivery of polio, rotavirus, pneumococcal and pentavalent vaccines, among others, to prevent further disease outbreaks. The World Bank's commitment to health systems strengthening in Yemen was fundamental to UNICEF's supply operation in the country, as the urgent demand for supplies accelerated.

EMERGENCY CASH TRANSFER PROJECT EMPOWERS INDIVIDUALS WITH CHOICES

UNICEF launched a $200 million cash transfer project financed by the World Bank, with over 1.5 million heads of households identified through Yemen's Social Welfare Fund and impacting over nine million people in their households. Cash transfer projects can empower beneficiaries to make buying decisions based on their own assessment of needs. Cash transfer also saves on the transport, logistics and environmental costs of regular UNICEF supply dispatches.

In the first payment cycle, between August and November, 1.33 million households received cash transfers, impacting 8.66 million people.

A post-distribution monitoring survey indicated that the cash transfers reached children. Some 85 per cent of surveyed households included at least one child under the age of 18, and in 52 per cent of those homes, at least one child was under 5 years of age. Two out of every five homes also included pregnant or lactating women.

The cash was primarily used for food and medicine, according to the survey findings. Nine out of every 10 survey respondents bought food, while one in two bought medicines and one in four used the cash to pay debts. The survey showed that beneficiaries used the cash quickly to alleviate immediate needs.

The project also benefited the local economy, as 94 per cent of the survey respondents purchased their items in the local market. The other 6 per cent could not find the fuel, food or medicine they needed locally and had to buy them in nearby districts.

Creating a fit-for-future workforce

Meeting the needs of children across the world requires a highly responsive, globally agile and connected workforce. UNICEF's Supply Community is made up of a diverse team of individuals with a strong sense of professional belonging and commitment

Representing 136 nationalities, the Supply Community serves children and their families across 97 countries, helping to fill gaps in supply and services, as well as responding to crisis situations.

We recruit from a broad range of professions. Many colleagues join the Supply Community from the private sector, NGOs, government, academia and other parts of UNICEF and the broader UN system.

UNICEF aims to create a workforce that is fit for the future by hiring the right numbers of supply professionals with the right profiles. We promote a culture of continuous learning, knowledge exchange and career development. To achieve these objectives, We maintain an agile workforce through deployments, learning and development assignments, and staff rotation.

UNICEF'S SUPPLY COMMUNITY – ACCELERATING RESULTS FOR CHILDREN

An agile Supply Community helps cover fluctuations in staffing needs in different locations around the world. UNICEF deploys staff to cover temporary requirements for emergency response, provide technical assistance and fill short-term gaps in capacity. Deployments and stretch assignments are excellent learning opportunities for staff, exposing them to different roles and contexts. Knowledge exchange is further supported while creating a sense of professional belonging as the global community builds lasting networks and collaboration between individuals and offices.

Ambreen Nawaz
SUPPLY AND LOGISTICS OFFICER, PAKISTAN

Ambreen was deployed to Dominica in November 2017 as part of a surge in logistics personnel deployment to the devastated eastern Caribbean region

“Putting theory into practice during my time in Dominica was very rewarding. Even though it was my first deployment, I was able to work independently to support logistics and supply matters. The enriching experience gave me more confidence and helped lead to my recent promotion to National Officer at UNICEF Pakistan.”

Djani Zadi
SUPPLY CHAIN SPECIALIST,
DENMARK

Djani was deployed to the eastern Caribbean islands in September 2017 where he coordinated the distribution of life-saving supplies to families affected by Hurricanes Irma, Jose and Maria

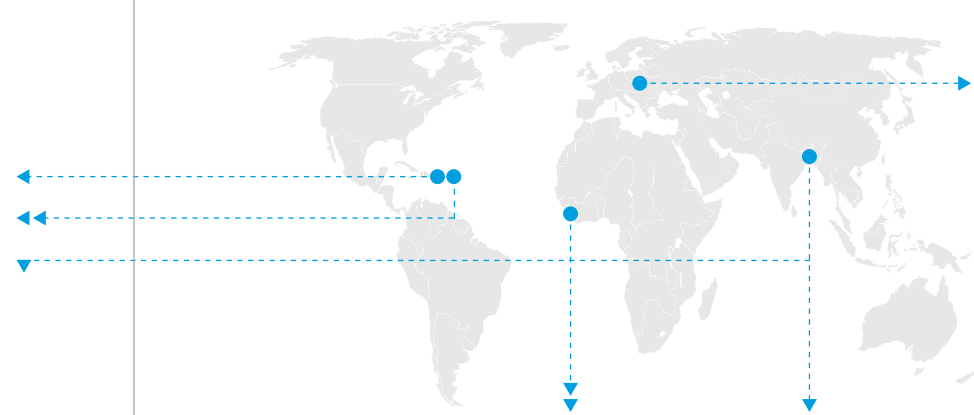

“I learned first-hand of the vulnerabilities of the Caribbean region to natural disasters and the complexities of coordinating the supply response for a multi-country disaster on separate islands. This involved rapidly leveraging existing partnerships to mobilize staff and get supplies to the affected populations, ensuring children were a priority. As the UNICEF logistics coordinator for the emergency operations, I felt I had no room for failure.”

Mohamed Soidik
Allan Gundersen &
Godfred Williams
WAREHOUSE ASSISTANTS,
DENMARK

Mohamed, Allan and Godfred were deployed to Cox's Bazar, Bangladesh, to support the Rohingya refugee crisis

These were the first UNICEF colleagues to be trained on how to use the UNICEF mInventory mobile application which allows goods to be scanned directly as they are received, enabling on-time registration of goods receipt and accurate inventory value. During their deployment, the team also trained local UNICEF staff to erect tents which accommodated Rohingya school children and allowed them to continue learning despite their displacement. “It is important to know you are making a difference. Seeing a child’s eyes light up as they enter the school tents gives the supplies we work with invaluable meaning,” said Allan.

Papa Allassane Diabate
SENIOR WAREHOUSE ASSOCIATE,
MALI

Papa was deployed to Cox's Bazar, Bangladesh, for two months to support the Rohingya refugee crisis

“Visiting refugees in the camps made me highly conscious of their situation and pushed me to work harder in my role as warehouse manager.” During his deployment, Papa received a one week training on using the UNICEF mInventory mobile application from his Supply Community colleagues Mohamed, Allan and Godfred from Supply Division, Copenhagen. Upon his return to Mali, Papa successfully transferred this newly acquired knowledge to his team members and a pilot of the application was launched for their warehouse operations.

Nadia Salamau
SUPPLY & LOGISTICS ASSOCIATE, KYRGYZSTAN

Nadia was deployed on a two month stretch assignment with UNICEF Ukraine to manage a large contract for a school rehabilitation project.

“I had familiarized myself with construction contracting in a local emergency context, but the large scope and the time pressure of the project urged me to mobilize all my resources to make it successful.” Stretch assignments contribute to creating a sense of professional belonging, strengthening both individual and team performance. The UNICEF Kyrgyzstan Country Office has a small supply function, this experience was a rewarding opportunity to share ideas and knowledge with a team of great supply professionals in the UNICEF Ukraine Country Office.”

SUPPLY CHAIN SPECIALIST,
DENMARK

Musonda was deployed on a three-month stretch assignment as the Chief of Procurement and Supply for UNICEF Sierra Leone

This career development stretch assignment entailed managing all supply operations including overseeing the procurement of all essential health commodities. “Performing this role helped validate my strengths and highlight possible areas for development. My career prospects have been strengthened and I now have the confidence and motivation to take on a senior role of this kind”. Musonda gained direct insight into the constraints and pressures faced by Country Offices, a lesson she now applies in her role in the Supply Chain Strengthening team at Supply Division in Copenhagen, “I have a broader understanding of specific country contexts and issues before engaging with countries in global initiatives”

Procurement in collaboration

To reach every child with timely, quality supplies and services, UNICEF collaborates with partners for more efficient and cost-effective solutions, better value for money and long-term sustainability

UNICEF engages with partners to identify and communicate needs, ensuring that the right supplies are developed and procured. Working together to design processes and set specifications ensures that products are fit-for-purpose and procurement activities are undertaken in the most efficient way. Procurement in collaboration leads to efficiencies, economies of scale and sharing of technical expertise. The graphic gives some examples of collaboration in 2017.

Promoting the strategic importance of procurement and supply chain management

As a member of the UN High Level Committee on Management – Procurement Network, UNICEF contributes to efficiency and effectiveness through collaboration, simplification and professionalization. In 2017, UNICEF also participated in the revision of the UN Procurement Practitioner’s Handbook, which provides guidance in best procurement practices, processes and procedures.

HIV Point-of-Care (PoC) diagnostics

With UNITAID, EGPAF, CHAI and other partners, consultations with suppliers helped communicate the need for HIV PoC diagnostics and coordinate programmatic and procurement activities. Collaborations also helped increase access to PoC diagnostics in sub-Saharan Africa.

Long-Lasting Insecticidal Nets (LLIN)

An industry consultation was co-hosted with The Global Fund and the President’s Malaria Initiative to update the industry on the organizations’ tender plans, technical issues and product standards.

In-Vitro Diagnostics (IVD) for ZIKA

UNICEF works with USAID, WHO and PAHO to develop product specifications and engage industry in the manufacturing of new rapid, low-cost and sensitive diagnostics that allow the simultaneous detection of ZIKA and related flaviviruses such as dengue, yellow fever and chikungunya.

Real-time E.coli testing

UNICEF issued a Target Product Profile in collaboration with WHO to communicate the broad requirements for an ideal product, engaging industry and academia in the development of innovative E.coli detection solutions.

Vaccines

UNICEF works with WHO, Gavi, PAHO, GPEI, MRI, countries and donors, among others, to enhance routine immunization and coordinate vaccination campaigns, forecast demand and procure oral polio vaccine and measles vaccines on behalf of partners.

Antiretroviral medicines

UNICEF collaborates with The Global Fund, UNDP, PAHO, KEMSA, USAID and MSF, among others, to coordinate demand for paediatric ARVs, aggregating forecasts and sharing them with industry for improved planning and supply security.

Hospital furniture

UNICEF and UNFPA issued a joint solicitation exercise for hospital furniture. This reduced transaction costs and improved value for money through joint forecasting, and improved negotiation power through the joint tender.

Insurance

A solicitation exercise led by UNPD, with technical support from UNICEF, led to renewed and improved insurance agreements for several UN agencies, with significant savings to be achieved.

Vehicles

Led by UNPD and UNDP, UNICEF provided technical expertise and contributed to the solicitation exercise forecast, leading to greater efficiency and improved coordination among UN agencies.

UNICEF makes Long-Term-Arrangements (LTAs) available for utilization by other UN agencies, including for computer hardware and accessories, multipurpose tents, power generation equipment, solar energy systems, vehicles and WASH supplies, among others.

UNICEF also piggybacks on various contracts from other agencies, e.g. UNPD and UNHCR for armoured vehicles, blankets and tarpaulins, reducing parallel processes and transaction costs.

Savings overview 2017

$394.6 million saved through improved strategic procurement approaches

In 2012, UNICEF projected that $810 million in savings could be achieved by the end of 2017 through increased competition and improved strategic procurement. In 2017, procurement savings across 14 supply commodities plus freight services reached $394.6 million. This brought the cumulative savings for the target period 2012–2017 to $2.051 billion. The target had been exceeded by 153 per cent. Almost all of these savings ($2.025 billion) were for health products, including vaccines, pharmaceuticals and medical supplies and equipment. The savings secured have mostly benefited governments and other partners, freeing more money to potentially buy more products for children. The savings could not have been achieved without the close collaboration and strategic activities of partners. Evidence-based strategies that leveraged competition, transparency, improved forecasts, special financing, innovative contracting and partner collaboration (e.g. joint forecasting and coordinated procurement) contributed to increased availability, stronger supplier bases and more affordable prices across these key commodity groups. Suppliers were able to offer better pricing through improved planning, allowing them to scale up production. Throughout, the ultimate goal remained – affordable essential supplies available for every child.

VACCINE PRICING

UNICEF exceeded its 2017 target to secure pricing under $18 for low income countries for the full schedule of vaccines recommended by WHO for children under one year of age, achieving a price of $16.24. This represents a 34 per cent decrease from the 2013 price of $24.46. These vaccines include: Penta (DTP-HepB-Hib), Measles, Rubella, BCG, Rota, PCV and IPV. The increased affordability and sustainability of the recommended schedule is a major milestone in the drive for the complete immunization of children in their first year of life.
